

Societe de Livres

The Societe de Livres aims to exchange books and let people get in touch with each other. Every human who owns a book may call himself a member of the Societe de Livres. The basis of the Societe de Livres is the exchange of a book for another book. Another definition is not permissible. The actual value of a book is irrelevant, because only the book counts as the basis. A book of the Societe de Livres may not be sold again and is therefore available to every member of the Societe de Livres free of charge by exchanging it for another book. A book is a real object and does not consist of a digital version. The Societe de Livres aims to collect the knowledge of mankind, to preserve it for all times and to protect it from the instability of the future.
